Gary --

I realize you are probably preoccupied with arrangements for "Minority Visitation Day," but Paul Walsh is on the hook for a quick DDI response to the SSC on our "direct or indirect involvement" with US academic institutions.

Paul doesn't think our reply, at least in the first instance, needs to be as detailed as the June 1973 study done by (attached). It should have some illustrative figures, however. Paul also wants it to make the points (if true) that:

- our contacts are overt,
- contractual arrangements are with individuals (or I suppose research institutions) and not academic institutions, and
- heads of academic institutions are aware of our contracts with faculty.

You will note that the deadline is very short (tomorrow). I've jotted down a few thoughts hoping that you (in consultation with Management Staff) can flesh them out a bit and get something back to us as soon as possible.

Paul

SUBJECT: DDI Relationships with US Academic or Research Institutions and with Individuals Affiliated with Such Institutions

1. As a matter of policy, the DDI encourages its analysts to stay in touch with the academic world in order to keep abreast of important scholarly contributions in areas of substantive interest to us. In 1974, for example, roughly _____ DDI officers attended academic gatherings, in some cases participating as speakers, while _____ were active as full-time or part-time teachers or as full-time students. Seventeen papers by DDI analysts were published in academic journals and six were presented to learned societies. These figures are roughly comparable to, though slightly higher than, the average for each year since 1970. DDI participation and contributions are about 80% of CIA employees.

2. In addition, various DDI components retain consultants and contractors for various specific purposes. In FY-75, OGCR maintained contracts with _____ academic consultants, OER with 10, etc. In each case, the contract is with the individual and not with his institution, but the institutions are always advised of the contract.

7.2 A growing number of unclassified publications produced by DDI offices are made available to the academic community through the document expediting project of Congress. DOCEX provides its subscribers with only US government publications that are not available for purchase at the GPO or at the issuing agency. Certain CIA publications, primarily atlases prepared by OGCR, have been reprinted by GPO and are available for sale to the public. [REDACTED]

4. Under the sponsorship of the Office of Political Research and the DDI Coordinator for Academic Relations, a series of topical seminars has been held in which DDI analysts ^{meet} ~~meet~~ with specialists from the academic community. The normal practice has been that the academicians are not compensated for their participation in these seminars although travel and certain other expenses may be defrayed by the Agency.

5. It should be added that a number of DDI officers are recognized ^Tauthorities in their field^S and therefore have considerable rewarding, informal contact with some of the country's top academic figures.

MEMORANDUM FOR: THE RECORD

SUBJECT : DDI Relations with Academia (1970-1972)

The following compilation outlines the scope and nature of DDI contact with academia, 1970-1972. This memo was prepared from responses prepared to a questionnaire (attached) by every DDI component. The data are, in summary form, as follows:

	Overall DDI Contact	1970	1971	1972
I. Published Academic Papers		15	18	17
II. Papers Presented to Learned Societies		8	5	6
III. Participants in Academic Panels or Seminars		7	11	7
IV. Attendants at Learned Society Gatherings		158	219	227
V. Speaking Engagements on Campus		10	18	32
VI. A. Full or Part-time Teaching Personnel		27	22	16
B. Full-time Students		24	39	45

It should be noted that this present memo differs from the most recent similar report (SRS/CAR memo to DDI of 9 February 1973) in these respects: the earlier paper included O/NE, this report does not; this report reflects the entire DDI, the earlier one only DDI's production elements.

VII.	Other Component Contacts with Academia

*Excludes numerous briefing contacts with academic institutions for recruitment purposes.

2. Academic consultants. OBGI has frequent contact with its six academic consultants, as does OER with its ten. CRS, in this time period, has used the services of two academic consultants; NPIC has frequent contact with its seven consultants. CSR has established a Military Economic Advisory Panel of five academic and industrial experts, who meet regularly with CSR personnel. SRS/CAR maintains occasional contact with a wide number of Chinese and of Soviet experts in academia (though not in the status of consultants).

3. CRS. The CRS-Document Expediting Project of the Library of Congress relationship, begun in February 1972, resulted in the release of 28 publications in 1972 (and more since then) to a subscribing membership of 141 university libraries. DocEx provides its subscribers with only US Government publications which are not available by purchase either at the GPO or at the issuing agency.

4. From 1970 - January 1972, CRS distributed to academia 34 different CRS-prepared Directories and compilations.

5. OBGI. In 1971, OBGI disseminated approximately 200 copies of the Indochina Atlas to appropriate academic users. In 1972, OBGI made available 1,368 copies of the People's Republic of China Atlas for dissemination through Domestic Contact Service and the Map Library Division/OBGI. Also in 1972, OBGI released 7 other publications, of which 27 copies of each were disseminated to academic and research organizations.

6. OER. During the period surveyed, OER released five separate publications, disseminating altogether 722 copies to numerous universities and research organizations.

7. SRS/CAR. During 1970-1972, SRS sent out altogether 19 CRS publications on Chinese subjects to 20-25 academic recipients -- a total of approximately 475 mailings (plus individual cover letters); and 5 CRS publications on Soviet subjects to 13 academic users -- a total of 65. SRS sent out 91 copies of CRS's monthly computer listing of Chinese appearances and activities to academics (1970 - 21 copies, 1971 - 28 copies, 1972 - 42 copies).

8. In 1971, SRS sanitized and released to the Center for Chinese Research materials, 33 intelligence reports on Inner Mongolia (1946-1949).

9. SRS also responded to numerous ad hoc requests from professors and students for maps, bibliographical lists, reference works, and other unclassified materials. In 1970, 27 such requests were serviced; in 1971, 30; in 1972, 53.

10. SRS sponsored seminars (with the assistance of DCS): (a) In March 1971, SRS arranged a China Seminar in Washington, D.C., which included 17 senior USG officials and 14 academics; (b) in November 1971, a similar Soviet seminar in New York City, involving three CIA analysts and five academics.

11. SRS guided the initiation and development of CETA (Chinese-English Translation Assistance), an inter-agency and USG-academia joint effort to develop a machine-assisted Chinese-English dictionary (from developmental work earlier done in DDS&T, DDI, and DDO).

12. Contacts Coordinated by SRS/CAR. Through a coordinated effort between SRS, CRS, and State, an in-depth unclassified biographical reference aid on North Vietnamese leadership was prepared and released to Southern Illinois University, with an additional copy placed in the Center for Research Libraries in Chicago.

13. SRS, OCI, DDO, and the Library cooperated in releasing 882 reels of unclassified voice tape of Fidel Castro speeches to the Library of Congress for copying, with the original tapes eventually to be given to Georgetown University.

STATSPEC

14. SRS coordinated an effort by CIA Library/
[redacted] State in depositing about 1,000 microfilm reels of Chinese Communist newspapers and journals at the Hoover
Institution and Library of Congress.

15. SRS, OER, and the CIA Library together made almost complete sets of three Cambodian periodicals (1969-1972) available to the Library of Congress.

STATSPEC

16. SRS/[redacted] set guidelines for depositing issues of four North Korean periodicals at the Hoover
Institution (on a regular basis).

STATSPEC

17. SRS/[redacted] established a procedure for regularly depositing numerous North Vietnamese periodicals and journals in hard copy at the Library of Congress and Southern Illinois University, with microfilms of selected ones sent to the Association of Research Libraries.

18. SRS coordinated the Center for Research Libraries'
xeroxing of selected Chinese periodicals in the Agency Library.

19. SRS coordinated briefings (at Hqs. Bldg.), of academic groups by senior DDI officers: 1970 - 5 such briefings; 1971 - 6; 1972 - 4.

STATINTL

20. Informal contacts. It should be added that many DDI officers (e.g., [redacted] [redacted] and others) have considerable, rewarding informal contact with many of the country's top academic figures.
